VANCOUVER LONGS FOR TRADE.
[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
TACOMA, May 12.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. Roberts of the steamship Victorian, just arrived from Alaska, says the white people of Alaska are taking the greatest precautions against the spread of smallpox. They have driven the Indians from the towns of Skagway, Juneau, Haines and Ketchikan, and while giving the natives all possible medical attention, they do not permit them to come in contact with the town population.

Indian houses are being quarantined as rapidly as possible, and steamship men here have been advised that the people of Vancouver, B. C., hoping to catch the south-bound Alaska trade, have rescinded all quarantine regulations as regards smallpox. Local transportation men say such action has been taken for that reason and no other.

that the order was timed with special reference to the recently promulgated regulation of the United States government directing the detention of returning Alaskan steamers at Port Townsend for quarantine inspection.

FUGITIVE SHOT OFFICERS.
THE SHASTA COUNTY EPISODE.
BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.
STANVILLE, May 12.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The particulars of the fight between the officers and the fugitives prisoners, Dorland and Illingsworth, from Rhasta County Jail, show that the fight was deadly. When Sheriff Beavers and Constable Walker came upon the men, three miles north of Adin, they were fishing on the creek. Dorland was at once covered with a rifle by the Sheriff, but Illingsworth secured himself by shooting at the sheriff.

Soon afterward Walker received a shot which disabled him, and the Sheriff, having exhausted his ammunition, started to run.

which contained a pair of handcuffs. The Sheriff dropped, and Illingsworth, supposing both officers were killed, started for the hills. This shot would probably have proved fatal to the Sheriff had it not been for the handcuffs, which were much bent.

Walker taken to a ranch house near by. Behrens had six shots through his clothing, and his escape from death was miraculous. This morning, Walker was moved to Adin, and everything was done to save him, but he died. Illingsworth will certainly be caught, as the country is now settled, and he must come in.

BUFFALO'S BIG FAIR.

Between the Opening and Dedication.

Progress in the Work of Preparation.

Los Angeles Exhibit in Fine Shape on the Opening Day.

BY RICHARD H. BARRY.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

BUFFALO (N. Y.) May 4.—The chief difference between before and after May 1 at the Pan-American Exposition is in the price of admission. Fifty cents is now charged where 25 cents paid for entrance before. Workmen are not so much in evidence as they were earlier in the week, though the force has not been decreased to any considerable extent. They are as numerous and as busy as before. The conspicuous outside work has been completed. Scaffolding is down, painting done, rubbish pretty well cleared away, the statuary nearly all placed, and the work of the gardeners, the making of roads, planting of grass and straightening up of canal ditches, all but completed. The foundation of things has been pushed to an advanced stage, and it is difficult to realize how rapidly work can progress after it has reached this point. Inside, booths are seemingly springing into existence in a night, though preparation for their building may have occupied two weeks. Outside, the visitor of one morning sees many rods of paving that the visitor of the morning before had not dreamed of. There are few visitors, however. It is generally known that May 1 was the day for official opening. Many thousands, the preposition attendance being as high as 25,000 on the last Sunday in April, had visited the grounds and were aware of the condition there. It was easily seen that complete readiness could not be reached on May 1. So the birth of the exposition was little heralded. On its natal day, it is now waiting for the formal dedication, May 20, before its greatest enthusiasm is displayed. Everywhere, more especially among the Midway people, there is self-congratulation at the prospect now for entire readiness on May 20. There are more than two weeks for brushing up debris, cutting off the sharp edges of unfinished decoration, smoothing down the corners of grass plots and flower beds and for getting the shows into the habit of running order. The water has been placed in the canals, the great basin of the Court of Fountains is already full, and this department will be in operation within the week. Decoration is in better shape than almost any other feature of the exposition proper. The festive appearance, so welcome a sight on opening day, still prevails inside, and these conditions will remain unchanged throughout the duration of the fair. The flags are flying, except those on the Government Building, where the banners of the United States fly in spite of intermittent showers and in the absence of a holiday. There is some scaffolding to be seen in the State and foreign section. Windows and Honduras, and the buildings for the A.O.U.W. and for the Macabees, are waiting now for occupancy, and they alone are in that condition. Of the two band stands on the Esplanade, one is being used by the band of the Sixty-fifth Regiment, while on the other carpenters are placing the elaborate decorations of staff. The third band stand, in the Plaza, behind the Tower, is being used by the band of the United States Fish Commission, in charge of W. de C. Ravenel, and the Mines Building, of which Dr. David T. Day of the United States Geological Survey is the superintendent. The varied assortment of fishes in the finest ever shown by the commission. It is said to excel the collection shown by the government at Atlanta in 1885, a display which has been considered the most complete ever shown either in the country or abroad. There are 1500 specimens of living fish in aquaria. The installation has occupied just seven days, the commission arriving here in its special car, constructed for fish transportation, a week before May 1, and the exhibit was ready on time. Dr. Day, who is in charge of the Mines Building, has had an extensive exposition experience, and so has been able to prepare his building for the advertised opening day. The building for Manufacturers and Liberal Arts, divided into three sections, one-half being for manufacturers, one-quarter for liberal arts, and one-quarter for food and other accessories, holds the most substantial booths. The section for foods is practically completed. Out of a total of forty-eight concerns represented on the floor, in booths, there are forty-one with their exhibits in and on display. Frederick W. Taylor, Superintendent of Horticulture and Floriculture and the Director of Concessions, is in charge, with G. Edward Fuller as his assistant. In the Horticulture Building, the western side is occupied by two exhibits from California, one from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and the other from the California Canning Association. The Los Angeles county exhibit is in the shape of a finished building, which is well under way. The Esplanade Building, under Dr. A. L. Benedict, presents a finished appearance inside as well as outside. Exhibits from Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Idaho and Nebraska have exhibits installed in the Agriculture Building, whose Superintendent is Frank A. Converse. In the Machinery and Transportation Building the exhibits of automobiles and of light carriages are nearly ready for public inspection. Across the Mall, the Electricity Building is in a less finished state. The Model Dairy is in operation, and the building for dairy exhibits has its installation about half completed. The stock barns will be in use in about a week. The Government Building had its exhibits on display May 1. There is a varied and complete display, and any visitor could find pleasure and profit there for several days. The electric illumination at night is by far the greatest attraction here now, and it seems likely that it will continue to be such in coming months. It is a brilliant display, and one that, unfortunately for the admissions department, can be enjoyed outside the grounds, and even miles away from the scene. The infant incubator is a building that is entirely ready, and which has been missed in the general fruitless search for completed exhibits elsewhere. Six babies are growing rapidly there, and will be born in a few days. They are twins, born in Buffalo, the last of May, too weak to obtain nourishment naturally. They are placed in finely-polished glass and nickel compartments, the incubators, and carefully tended. Every four hours they are given fifty grams of nourishment, either from a wet nurse, or, if too weak, they are fed artificially on sterilized cow's milk. The danger of a change of babies, feared by those unfamiliar with the system employed, is unknown. Each baby has a silver tag with its initials and a number stamped on it, soldered to an ivory chain that is placed around its neck. It is on the Midway that the crowds now gather the greatest and linger the longest. This has become the conspicuous part of the exposition, and it seems now to be almost a case of self-wagging the tail. Privately and mirth, with much leaven of wholesome recreation, prevails. Two American eagles, seen in most parts of the grounds, surround Bostwick's trained wild-animal arena, which was the first to open, and which now holds a large share of attention. South of that 300 warriors in the Indian Congress give afternoon and evening exhibitions. The tuneful songs of Italy are heard in the streets of Venice, and the Hawaiian village and volcano are the first of the shows to exhibit scenes from colonial life. The Phillos expected here today, but word was received that they had missed their steamer at Hongkong, and would be delayed two weeks. The Mexicans are waiting for a few days before opening, and the Egyptians, Syrians, Bedouins and Persians from the beautiful Orient are in a similar state of inaction. A Lesson to Humorists. [London Morning Post.] One cannot safely assume in these days that there is any region in which such-and-such a journal is not read. Recently a certain humorist needed a rest, and went and stopped in a cottage in a remote village by the sea. His sitting-room opened on the kitchen, where his landlady, a woman widely esteemed as a person of great acumen and a maker of phrases, was wont to receive the neighbors. He listened and put both landlady and neighbors into some amusing sketches, which were promptly published in a London magazine. A month or two went by. Then, one afternoon he came back to the cottage to meet and dine before a very distinguished matron, who told him, among other things, that he had one hour in which to pack his traps and quit the village. She was not going to have an eavesdropper in her house, and she added significant hint to the effect that the people of the village were of the same opinion, and might be betrayed into an attempt to give a forcible demonstration of their views.
